Christmas Party Wednesday 6th December

A good time had by all? Since starting to write these reports, I have always been impressed by the standard of catering we turn on for visitors and ourselves when the occasion invites it. This year's Christmas lunch set a new standard, largely due to the generosity and efforts of Steve and Glen who donated the roast chickens and other meats that made up so much of the outstanding first course.

Preparations

Drawing the Winners

After a lunch like that everyone was a winner, but then came the drawing of the raffles. Every club member's name on a slip of paper and every winning ticket to be honoured. None of this putting the ticket back if the winner was not present. Marg had packaged each prize, carefully calibrated to be of approximately equal value and appeal. It became something of a problem for Marg. She then had to decide which prize to reserve for the lucky, but unfed winner. Marg's tinsel crown, as the raffle fairy, may have felt like a crown of thorns.
